

CRIMES AGAINST MUSIC

Sunday, August 17, 2008

'Whoa-oh-Obama, bam-a-lam'

Filmed Aug. 9, 2008, by the ever-ingenious Du-Tels, a.k.a. Peter Stampfel and Gary Lucas, an Obama ode sung to the tune of "Black Betty":

Obama has a vision, bam-a-lam
Obama has a dream, bam-a-lam
His shit don't stink, bam-a-lam
We're on his team, bam-a-lam

I don't imagine the Obama people will pick it up, but if they did this would be the greatest campaign theme since "Ike for President" in 1952.

Click here to read my Du-Tels piece in New York Press from seven years ago.

Labels: politics, video

My goods

NY Times music

Doolittle \(33 $\frac{1}{3}$ series\)

WFUV Music Review

(subscribe to podcast;
archives)

NY Times Popcast \(subscribe\)

Clive Davis Dept. of Recorded

Music @ NYU (courses:

Writing About Popular

Music; Rock in Historical Context)

An interview with me

Doolittle NYT review

Soundcheck: Pixies, Tom

Waits, music venues

Blender magazine

MySpace

The Petitioners

BandToBand.com